THE COLE-BISCOCK DECISION. Motion to Admit to Bail Denied-Supreme Court, Columbia Special Term, Aug. 8, 1868.

ight open the real character or the offence, and the situation or suit of a new trial.

In this we start with an indictment against the prisener, sember-tely presented and perseveringly pro-ceuted for one of the very highest crimes known to the law. This of itself is usually regarded before trail as presumptive evidence of guit sufficiently strong to justify a refusal to bail. Then we have in the conceded or undented facts of the transaction not only strong evidence of the act of killing, but that the act was done with premeditation, provided the prisoner was not insancor under the temporary dominion of a sudden and uncontrollable frenzy. The prisoner having previously provided himself with a pistol and coaded the same, proceeded to the office of a principal hotel in Albany, and without any previous admonition or conversation or any provocation at the time other than such as might be supposed to arise from the sight of the alleged destroyer of his domestic peace, shot the deceased instantly dead. I have examined the testimony taken as the trial with the care required by its importance. As I may possibly be required to preside on the trial hereafter to be bad. I will not venture to express an opinion unon its legitimate effect. It is not, however, improper to say that the charge of the able and carned Judge who presided on that trial (which I have also read with give attention due to the source from whichit proceeded) tends strongly to the confluxion that the prisoner is guilty of marder, unless savel therefrom by irresponsibility for his act growing out of mental aberration.

This in substance must be the main defence on the trial, for weatever sympathy a properly constituted mind must necessarily and inevitably indulge in reference to the prisoner growing out of mental aberration.

This in substance has taggment of the law on the entere electurity secured by keeping the prisoner in confinement for a short time longer?

The jury on the previous trial disagreed, and this is put forward as a strong reason for bailing the prisoner. The circumstances and mode of their disagreement are sufficiently established. I admit the affidavits of the jurors heretorore conditionally read apon that subject. From them it is apparent that throughout (unless possibly upon the last ballot) six of the jurors were in favor of acquittal, and six in favor of conviction of the crime of murder, though the laster were willing to adopt the verdict of mansiaughter in the third degree if it could be made unanimous. The opinions of all these jurors, arrived at after a protracted trial, after great deliberation, and under the charge of an enightened Court, are entitled to great respect, but are neverticless not conclusive. Taking them as they are, they leave the matter in great doubt. If six of them were in favor of acquittal, six of them were in favor of acquittal, six of them were laston the latter, it might well be doubted whether a discretion exercised in favor of balling the prisoner was judiciously exercised.

As to the probable result of the trial which is here-the gravity of the accusation is not such, supported as it is by an indictment deliberately found, and by much evidence on a trial airrady had, as well as by the opinions of six jurors after half a month's protracted investigation, as to make it safer and better on the whole for the general interests of justice and the protection of the whole community, that the defend nt should submit to a little longer confinement, which is inseparable, to a greater or less extent, from all criminal accusations, than that a temptation to escape from the wengeance of the law in a possible confinement which is possible misconstruction of an act of judicial discretion should occur.

It is proper to do all in my power to prevent such misconstruction, and therefore to say that while a decision to admit to bad would furnish no just ground for an interence in favor of the acquital of the prisoner, so a centrary conclusion, should not be construct as evineing any opinion of the Court in favor of conviction, but, simply as a precautionary measure to guard the just rights of the public, while productive of no real deriment to the legal rights of the accused party.

On the whole, after the best consideration I have

The evidence of Dr. Harris is perfectly clear on this point. In his last letter he states:

"The fact must be fearlessly told, that it is a crime against hire to offer for food any portion of the flesh of the sick and infected animals that may for several weeks continue to be sent forward from infected districts in the West. It is idle to talk of such meats being safe and wholesome for food. Medical officers of this Board are metally bound to know the truth on the subject, and to advise accordingly. The discussed beef must not be exposed in our markets, and there is good reason to believe it will not be."

The fine appearance of the command and the tasty and near manner in which the camp of the Twenty-second Regiment is kept, is the constant remark of the many visitors who daily throng the encampuent and view this brief bit of life under canyas. It is an easy matter to designate the tents of those who have before served in the field, by their air of comfort, and by the little conveniences that one so soon learns to invent as substitutes for the luxuries of a more civilized life. The dress parades of the regiment is now held upon the lawn to the west of the Stetson House, and they are nightly witnessed by delighted crowds, among whom are many New Yorkers, proud of the display made by one of their favorite regiments. On Thursday, under direction of Lieut.-Col. Remmey (Col. Post being made. Yesterday afternoon the competitive firing, and did very well indeed, some excellent shots being made. Yesterday afternoon the competitive firing took place. The result and names of the successful men will not be announced until to-day, when the prizes are to be delivered, in the presence of an immense crowd, which the occasion will be certain to draw together, by Lieut.-Gov. Stewart L. Woodford. On Thursday evening a hop was given at the Stetson House by the proprietor, C. A. Stetson, and the officers and many of the members of the Twenty-second yer present. We noticed Col. Post, Licut.-Col. Remmey, Major Porter, Quartermaster Rodgers, Adjutant Tate, Capts. Clanranaid, Paimer, Vose, Brown, and Wingate, Licuts. Laird, Briggs, and others of the Twenty-second; Brigadier-General Aspluwall, Major Tomes, and Capt. McCure, of the Fourth Briggde staff, and one or two other officers of New York regiments, in plain attire. In addition, there were simply superb. We refrain from attempting a description of the Gress worn. Tonight there is to be a grand hop at the Stetson House, given by the officers and members to attend to their bro somewhat from the enjoyment of the occasion. A number of efficars of the regiment were present.

The Forty-seventh Regiment will leave for Albuny on the 26th inst., to receive a stand of colors from the State authorities voted the command a considerable time since. The regiment will be conveyed there and return on the steamer Rip Van Winkle, which has been chartered for the occasion. The following are the arrangements during the stay of the regiment in Albany: Upon its arrival in Albany the Forty-seventh will be received by two companies of the Tenth Regiment, and escorted from the boat to the State Arsenal, which will be the headquarters of the regiment during its stay in the city. The morning will be devoted by the members of the regiment to visiting their friends and socing the city. At 3 o'clock the regiment will assemble at the arsenal and be escorted by the Toth and Twenty-fifth Regiments, under the command of Brig. 4-ieu. D. W. Woodhull, to the parade ground about a mile north of the capitol, where there will be a dress parade and a review by the commander-in-chief, after which the regiment will be presented with a stand of colors on behalf of the State authorities.

Company B of the Fifth Regiment, commanded by Capt. Rheeber, will on Tues-lay next go on their annual execution to Landmanna Hamilton Park, at Third avenue and Sixty-eighth street.

R. W. Sir Kt. Sewell Fisk, who died on Wednesday last, may properly be termed the Father of the Fraternity in this city, his age and long connec-tion with the Masonic order well meriting auch a years of age. In 1816 he joined the order in Boston, and has since been a Freemason. Since that time he has been connected with all the various rites and degrees of the order, and at the time of his death was a member of Marinera' Lodge, No. 67, of which he was a Past Master; Phemix Chapter, No. 2; Adelphic Council, No. 7; Morton Commandery, No. 4; the Grand Council, the Grand Commandery, No. 4; the Grand Council, the Grand Commandery, Supreme Council of the A. and A. S. Rite, and of the Rite of Momphis. About the year 1850 he was appointed Grand Tiler of the M. W. Grand Lodge of the State of New York, and subsequently of the Grand Council and Grand Commandery, and held these responsible positions from that time to the day of his death—an Assistant Grand Tiler having been appointed at the last session of the Grand Lodge to assist him in his duiles, in consequence of his feeble health. He also held at one time the position of Assistant Grand Lecturer, and has always been considered an active working Mason. During his viger he was always held as an authority on all disputed matters relative to Masonie usage, and his opinion was held in high respect by the crait. By the officers and members of the Grand Lodge he was at all times greatly respected; and when Illness prevented him, during the last session, from occupying his accustomed position, has absence was a source of shacer ergert. The funeral ceremonics will take place to-morrow afternoon, and all the various lodges and the fraternity in general are respectfully invited to attend it at the residence of his son-in-law, William McDonough, Jr., 35 West Twenty-third street, at 1 o'clock. The Grand Treasurer, M. W. John W. Simons, has also invited the Present and Past Grand officers to meet at the office of the Grand Secretary to unite in paying the tribute due to the memory of a true and faithful brother. The cerumonies will form an epoch in Masonie history that will be long remembered by those who may take part in them.

Judge Bonney was immediately conveyed to his residence, where he is at present confined to his bed.

OBITUARY.—Mr. Thomas J. O'Connor, for 13 years an attaché of the Tribune in the capacity of proof reader, died in this city yesterday, aged 29 years. He is much regretted by those with whom he was professionally connected, and also by his fellow-members of Typographical Union No. 6, of which he was a valued member. The funeral will take place at 2 P. M. to-morrow from 20 Oliver street. DE Pol's BALLET COMPANY.-We hear great things of Mr. De Pol's "Great European Star Ballet Combination," as he styles his new troupe of dancers. He has been busily at work, for some time past, securing the different members of it in the various capitals of Europe, and the result, we are informed, is one of the finest combinations of professors of the Terpsichorean art that ever charmed the New York public. Among others, LEONILDA CROCE has been engaged. She is famous for being able to stand on the boards eight or ten minutes at a time, as fixed and rigid as a statue. Victor Emanuel, King of Italy, and his son, Prince Humbert, lately expressed their admiration of her by sending her a bouquet, with an emerald in it weighing an oance. This magnificent jewel the artist wears constantly in a medallion on her breast. Amalia Morosini is another of Mr. De Pol's celebrities, better known as "the Coquette of Egypt." Her last engagement was at Constantinople, and her de-parture from that city was like that of a queen. A long procession of men with lighted torches escorted her to the place of embarkation, and a military band played a new composition by the Maestro Soltz, entitled "Come egain, Morosini." The Danish, Egyptian, Italian, and Spanish papers all speak of her as a model of her art. Miss VITALY is a young lady of twenty-two summers, and is known as the "danseuse of nightly ovations." Then, too, we are to have that well established favorite of New Yorkers, ELISA BLASINA, "the bird of the dance." She is a disciple of the great master, Carlo Blasis' and is to be the leading performer of the troupe. In addition to the above, there are Victorina Fontains, "the danseuse of cheores," and Catalina Corna-Dini, who promises to achieve wonderful success in the future. Altogether, if Mr. De Pol keeps a tenth part of the promises he makes, New York will have a brilliant season of ballets the coming autumn and

The Late ... tal Ferry Boat Accident.—
Coroner Flynn yesterday concluded the inquest on the body of John Gordon, about 18 years of sge, who, on Monday last, was run over while in a small row boat by the ferry steamer James Watt at the Christopher street silp and drowned. As reported at the time, Henry Mason, the pilot of the forry boat, was strested on a charge of wilful carelessness in connection will the accident. A large amount of testimony was taken. Henry Deely, one of the three boys who were in the row boat at the time of the accident testified that in conjunction with the boy Gordon and another boy. Bernard Keenan, they hired a boat at the foot of Christopher street to take a sail up and down the river; they were passing Christopher street slip when the ferry boat was coming in; not notleng her, they were struck before they had time to get out of the way; the witness and Keenan jumped out of the boat; Gordon stayed in and crued to the pilot to stop, while he (the witness) shouted to him from the water to do the same; the wheel made one more turn, then stopped, stood still about five minutes, and then turned toward them again; the wheel struck the boat and smushed it in pieces. Other witnesses told in substance the same story. The jury rendered a verdict as follows: That John Gordon came to bis death by being accidentally drowned on the 10th day of August, and we exonerate the pilot and engineer; that said accident was occasioned by the James Watt running into the small boat. We recommend that pilots be instructed to be more careful of smaller craft. Mr. Mason was discharged from custody.

Revenue Services.—The new Revenue Collector of the Second District, having obtained information of the existence of a number of illicit distilleries, detailed several officers, to examine into the matter. The officers, in their preregrinations about Red Hook Point, discovered an illicit still of about 100 gallons capacity, in operation, in Irving, near Columbia street; another in Browne, near Firlay street, in a building occupied as a boat shop. Here were located two stills in full operation. One was directly under the floor, and could only be reached by passing through a hole of about 18 inches in width, situated immediately beneath the bench in the shop where the owner of the premises was at work. On descending, a 50 galion still was found in full blast. Another still of 150 galions capacity was found on the same floor. The premises were selved and an officer placed in charge. None of the owners could be found.

SUPERIOR COURT, CHAMBERE—BEFORE JUDGE GARVIN.—SUIT FOR RBREACH OF FROMISE OF MARBIAGE—Henney agt. Herman, This is a suit for damages for breach of bronnise of marriage, commenced by the service of a summons, and in which the defendant was a short time ago arrested upon the affidavit of plathtid, alleging that something over a year ago she was seduced by thu under soleum, promise of marriage; that subsequently he renewed the promise that he would marry her as soon as his business was arranged, and then he wrote her from this city to come on here and he would marry her. She compiled with his request, and has lived with him in this city as his wife for one year, he introducing her among his friends as his wife. A motion was made yesterday to vacate the order of arrest upon the plaintid's affidavit, on the ground that, admitting it to be true, the parties were man and wife, and therefore there could be no breach of promise of marriage. The motion was denied, the Court holding that cohabitation and acknowledgment by defendant that plaintiff was his wife was only presumptive evidence of the fact, which might be rebutted by plaintiff.

There has been a general decline in Governments to-day of 1/2 to 1/2 per cent. At the first and second Boards the transactions were limited, and a strong desire to sell was manifested; but at the afternoon session there was more disposition to buy, and about half a million 5-20s of 1867 and 1898 were taken at 108%. There seems no good reason for this decline, and while weak holders will realize, strong parties will take the bonds at the present low figures, and sell them at a handsome profit when the reaction comes.
